After arriving you begin your visit to the museum with a cup of coffee and a local sweet pastry called "BroekerBol".

11.00 'o clock

After enjoying your lunch, our guide takes you through the museum and tells you all about the life of farmers and their families around the year 1900. As part of the tour, you will also visit the following expositions:

- The Realm of a Thousand Islands;
This "living map" tells you more on how the area came into existence.
- A Day at the Auction.
An example of the average working day for a local farmer around the year 1900.

12.00 'o clock

During the boat tour through the Realm of a Thousand Islands you will feel like a farmer on his way to the auction with his harvest. During this immersive experience you will hear, see and feel how it was one century ago.

13.00 'o clock

After the boat trip, lunch will be served. A so-called West Frisian coffee table, consisting of a generous selection of bread, four kinds of cold cuts, rye bread, rusk, cheese, sweet spreads, butter, coffee and tea (soup and a "kroket" – a typical Dutch meat-based snack – can be added as an extra option).

14.00 'o clock

The highlight of the day! You will take place on the very same authentic benches at the auction where the traders used to sit. You will feel the tension rise as the auctioneer sets the starting price for the vegetables, using the button to stop the auction clock and set the eventual selling price.

15.00 'o clock

End of program. Of course you are free to explore the museum at your own leisure.

16.00 'o clock
